James France

Founding Member, Commission for Peace

James Madison France is an Ambassador for the Peace Innovation Initiative and serves as a member of the Commission for Peace, focused on the mission of promoting understanding, tolerance, and coexistence to stimulate cooperation among peoples, and to help lessen obstacles and threats to progress.

James has spent his career within investment banking, corporate financing, and management consulting, where he is actively spearheading the CFO Advisory Group for Sia Partners, working with institutions on innovative strategies and corporate sustainability, developing actionable frameworks that address areas of human rights, labor, environment, and anti-corruption, embracing the principles set forth by the UN Global Compact principles. Previously, James has worked with Deutsche Bank, the Blackstone Group, and several single-family offices.

James holds a Finance degree from the University of Baltimore (Maryland, United States).
