Her Royal Highness plays a prominent role in the national and international activities of the dynastic orders of the Royal House of Bourbon Two Sicilies especially those that relate to charitable and humanitarian assistance of the Sacred Military Constantinian Order of Saint George, based in Naples and Rome, with several delegations worldwide.

The Princess is also active in other major charities, including UNICEF, the Red Cross, the Olave Baden-Powell Society, the Association "Monaco Against Autism", "Amitié sans Frontières", "Les Anges Gardiens de Monaco", as well as "Les enfants de Frankie", a Beneficent Association that supports sick, disabled and disadvantaged children in Monaco and the whole Provence Alpes Côte d'Azur region. In 2016 she established the Princess Camilla of Bourbon Charitable Foundation, which supports charitable, technical or educational cause, with a focus on the protection of the environment and promoting scientific development in the emerging markets.

The Princess also supports important cultural and sports events and is actively involved in the struggle for the preservation of endangered animals, designing a new collaboration with the important foundation "Jacques Rougerie" sponsored by the Institut de France. The Princess is an influential "patron of the arts", having served as Honorary Ambassador of "La Chambre Monegasque de la Mode" between 2012 and 2014 and she works with enthusiasm and perseverance to protect the arts and crafts of artisans in the South of Italy. Especially those rare fields that create neck ties, jewelry, leather goods and perfumes.

On 3 March 2016, the Princess received the prestigious Humanitarian Award from the UN Women for Peace Association, awarded to her for "her intense social activity in favour of disadvantaged women." This association, founded in 2008, is responsible for supporting the projects of the United Nations that offer opportunities for women to participate in the construction of global peace, through social, cultural and educational programs.

The Princess is also very active in Her family business, involving financial activities, and working in the fields of defense, aerospace, and home-land security. Princess Camilla is the Ambassador of the Italian association "Salvamamme", which provides support and shelter to mothers in difficulty and their children. The Princess's role as a philanthropist has also led to various collaborations and memoranda of understanding with major Italian hospitals, including the IDI Hospital, one of Italy's leading centers for the treatment of dermatological diseases, not to mention Her Royal Highness's role as a patron for the Pediatrics Department at the Princess Grace Hospital Center in Monaco. H.R.H. the Duchess of Castro is President of the Jury and Ambassador of the Influencer Awards 2019. H.R.H. the Duchess of Castro had also been appointed as Ambassador for WWF Italy in June 2004. On March 11st, 2025 H.R.H. the Duchess of Castro was awarded the Philanthropy Award at the Women of Monaco Awards.
