

EVIE EVANGELOU

Founder & President, Fashion 4 Development (F4D)

Evie Evangelou is the President and Founder of Fashion 4 Development (F4D). She first introduced F4D's global awareness campaign and the Annual Official First Ladies Luncheon program during the UNGA in 2011, inspired by her career in the international arena of cultural diplomacy and international relations, specializing in Entertainment, Arts, Fashion, Beauty, Travel & Tourism and Trade Development.

Previously, Evie served as interim Deputy Secretary General for the World Federation of the United Nations in NYC, where she worked with more than 100 UN Member States & Countries and Missions, as well as numerous non-governmental bodies focused on education, cultural affairs, and humanitarian causes. She received the appointment by Kensaku Hogen, a former Under Secretary-General of the United Nations Department of Public Information, as a Special Consultant for Cultural and Educational Affairs and programs within UN DPI, one of the nine departments comprising the United Nations Secretariat. She was also appointed as a strategic consultant to the special representative of the UN Secretary-General for the United Nations themes "Dialogue among Civilizations and Diversity is Beautiful".

Throughout her career she has received acknowledgements by the U.S. Senate for her efforts and initiatives at Lincoln Center in NYC for bringing hundreds of artists from 9 different creative industries to co-create which was dubbed "the Olympics of the Arts. She has been honored by several international governments as well as served as Goodwill Ambassador. Fashion Group International presented Evie Evangelou with the Humanitarian Award for her work of creating positive social change for humanity.